If you suspect that your wife has found you out, tell her before she can tell you. She'll be so mad she'll forget half she wanted to say.

We editors are at heart a truthful bunch of fellows. And yet when death overtakes some skate we have to pay glowing tributes to his virtues when we know darned well he is shaking hands with the devil.

CLOSED DOORS.

Necessity, we are told, is the mother of invention. It may be. But be that as it may, the inability to secure booze has converted many a family cellar or basement into a home brewery.

Old recipes have been dug up, new ones have been studied out, and the work of brewing the home drink goes merrily on—behind closed doors.

Thirst is a mighty hard thing to buck. It gripes you, and tears you, and demands insistently that it be quenched.

And water, some say, is a very weak and unsatisfactory substitute.

Yes, home is a great institution in this happy land of ours, and the brilliancy of its inventive faculties is never dimmed.

Perhaps that is why they call it "home brew."

Why envy the man who has money? It isn't all yours.

We just simply have to say it all over again. "Do your Christmas shopping early."

We the people are gradually putting an end to the days of getting rich quick. But we still have the cusses with us.

Honest toil is a credit to any man. But some people are opposed to the credit system.

The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine. But the average court is not presided over by a god.

A writer of note has stated that the state of Texas, under intensive cultivation, could produce enough food stuffs to feed the world. Good as far as it goes. But how about the drinks?

Reports dribble across the border to the effect that Mexico will spend hundreds of thousands of dollars for agricultural machinery to be retailed to Mexican consumers. That is, if they can find the consumers.

No woman has a very high opinion of a low salaried man, especially if he happens to be her adoring husband.

KIDS WITH THE KIDS.

The children in a certain home we might mention seldom get lonesome. They have little desire for the abandon of the street, which is dear to most children of their age.

But there is a reason.

In their hours of relaxation the parents forget the years that have flown and call up the days of their own childhood.

They enter into sports with their children, and take an interest in those things which please the little ones most.

They are comrades as well as parents, and because they are such the child does not find it necessary to drift away from home in search of enjoyment.

This training policy of the parents has its beneficial results in two ways. Through constant intimate contact their own superior knowledge is gradually imparted to the children each day in a manner a child can readily understand.

And it keeps the freshness of youth in their own mature hearts.

For, after all, people are only as old as they feel.

HANDLE WITH CARE.

Too much attention can not be paid to the proper training of the children of this community.

As is the child of today, so is the man or woman of tomorrow. There are few exceptions to this rule.

Giving the child an education, a good suit, a few dollars and sending it out into the world to battle for existence will not suffice. Parents owe a more sacred duty to their offspring.

The child is entitled to health, to an acute conception of right and wrong, and to the cultivation of perseverance, forbearance and mercy.

With these attributes freely inculcated in its mind, body and heart, it will not stray far on the forbidden path of life.

No person is normal without good health, and the great achievements of the world are accomplished by normal men and women.

From the day of its birth the health should be a prime consideration for the child, and there should be no relaxation in hygienic watchfulness from birth to maturity.

The other attributes follow in their natural sequence, and the lessons are better understood and more freely assimilated because of a healthy state of mind and body.

Going home to turkey and trimmin's

THANKSGIVING DAY last year.

I ATE my chow.

ALONE in the big town.

AND THE TURKEY was all.

NEATLY VARNISHED and had.

NICE LITTLE paper pants,

ON BOTH its legs.

AND TASTED strongly,

LIKE NOTHING at all,

BUT THIS year,

MAN ALIVE, I'm going home,

AND THERE will be,

A COUNTRY turkey,

DONE to a turn.

BROWN AND savory,

CRISP AND flaky,

SENDING UP little clouds,

OF TANTALIZING steam,

MAKING NOSTRILS wrinkle,

AND PALATES quiver,

OH BOY, real turkey,

AND THEN afterwards,

ABLE to breathe,

BUT NOT to bend,

I'LL REACH for a smoke,

THAT'S THE real turkey, too,

COSTLY AROMATIC Turkish,

BLENDED WITH the best,

OF MELLOW Domestic leaf,

AND ONCE again—oh boy,

CAN'T YOU just hear me,

INFORMING THE world,

"THEY SATISFY."

IT'S real Turkish tobacco that goes into Chesterfields—really grown in Turkey and bought on the ground by our own buyers. To blend it with best Domestic, in the exclusive Chesterfield way—leave that to us! "They Satisfy?" We'll leave that to you.

In packages of 20 protected by special moisture-proof wrapper. Also in round AIR-TIGHT tins of 50.
